Program Guide for Mobile Phones “G-GUIDE MOBILE”
Remote Scheduling Function Standard in all NTT Docomo FOMA 902iS Series
~Now with Over 6 Million Registered Users!~

“G-GUIDE MOBILE” (Application name: “G-GUIDE Program Guide Remote Control”), the TV program guide provided by Interactive Program Guide, Inc. (“IPG,” based in Chuo-ku, Tokyo, President: Keisuke Toji) and D2 Communications, Inc. (“D2C,” based in Minato-ku, Tokyo, President: Akihisa Fujita) for NTT DoCoMo mobile phones, will have the “Remote Scheduling Function” installed as a standard function on all models of the NTT DoCoMo FOMA 902Si series to go on sale from May 2006. This function, which has been accessible in download-able format since May 1st for the SO902i model will become available as a standard function in all models of the 902Si series.

“G-GUIDE Program Guide Remote Control” is an application that provides TV program listings for free. “Remote Scheduling” is a function that allows users to set recordings on home DVD recorders from mobile phones using network communication. By completing a simple, initial registration, users will be able to access this service and set recordings from outside their home.

3 DVD recorders currently support the “Remote Scheduling Function”: Sony's "Sugo-roku" series of HDD-equipped DVD recorders with a built-in digital Hi-Vision tuner (RDZ-D97A/D77A/D87).

In addition, the number of registered “G-GUIDE MOBILE” users on May 5th reached the 6 million mark, totaling 6,006,658 users (for i-mode).

D2C and IPG will continue to improve the convenience and services offered by “G-GUIDE”, starting with the expansion of DVR and mobile models supporting the “Remote Scheduling Function.”
